

FREE GUIDE

10 AI Prompts Every CRE & Finance Pro Needs

Copy-paste prompts that write your listings, outreach, investor updates and LinkedIn posts - in minutes, not hours.

Julie Chasen | Marketing Director | AI for CRE & Finance

How to use this guide

Each prompt below is ready to paste into ChatGPT, Claude, or Copilot. Replace the [bracketed] parts with your deal details. The more specific your inputs, the better the output - treat the AI like a sharp junior analyst who needs context.

One rule: always review before you send. AI drafts, you decide.

01 Listing Description That Sells

Stop staring at a blank page for every new listing.

Act as a commercial real estate copywriter. Write a compelling 150-word listing description for a [property type] at [address/submarket]. Key specs: [square footage, cap rate, occupancy, notable tenants]. Tone: professional but vivid. End with a clear call to action for investor inquiries.

02 Cold Outreach to Property Owners

Personalized owner outreach in 30 seconds, not 30 minutes.

Write a 90-word cold email to the owner of [property/address]. I'm a [broker/investor] interested in [buying/listing] the property. Reference [recent market trend or comparable sale] to show credibility. Friendly, no pressure, one clear ask: a 15-minute call.

03 Investor Update Email

Keep your LPs and clients confident between quarters.

Draft a quarterly investor update for [deal/fund name]. Cover: occupancy at [X%], NOI of [$X], key leasing activity [details], market outlook for [submarket], and next steps. Professional, transparent, under 300 words, formatted with short headers.

04 Market Snapshot in Plain English

Turn raw data into a client-ready market take.

Summarize these market data points into a 5-bullet market snapshot a client could read in 60 seconds: [paste vacancy rates, rent growth, cap rates, absorption, notable transactions]. Add one sentence of 'what this means for buyers' and one for sellers.

05 LinkedIn Post: Deal Announcement

Announce closings in a way that attracts the next deal.

Write a LinkedIn post announcing the closing of [deal details: property type, size, submarket]. Don't just brag - share one lesson or market insight from the deal. Hook in the first line, short paragraphs, end with a question to drive comments. No hashtag spam - max 3.

06 LinkedIn Post: Market Take

Become the person people follow for market insight.

Write a LinkedIn post giving my take on [market trend, e.g., rising cap rates in suburban office]. My position: [your view]. Open with a contrarian or surprising hook, back it with 2-3 data points [paste data], end with a question. Sound like a practitioner, not a research report.

07 Objection Handling Cheat Sheet

Never get caught flat-footed on a pitch again.

I'm pitching [service/deal] to [investor type/client type]. List the 7 most likely objections they'll raise, and give me a concise, credible response to each. Format as a two-column cheat sheet: Objection / Response.

08 Offering Memo Executive Summary

The hardest page of the OM, done in one pass.

Write the executive summary for an offering memorandum: [property type, location, price, cap rate, NOI, occupancy, tenant mix, value-add angle]. One page, confident institutional tone, lead with the strongest investment highlight.

09 Follow-Up Sequence That Doesn't Nag

Most deals die from no follow-up. Automate yours.

Write a 3-email follow-up sequence for a prospect who [saw the property / received the OM / took a call] but went quiet. Email 1 (day 3): value-add nudge with a new data point. Email 2 (day 8): relevant comp or market news. Email 3 (day 15): polite breakup email. Each under 80 words.

10 Client-Ready Deal Comparison

Help clients decide faster - and credit you for the clarity.

Compare these [2-3] investment opportunities for a client: [paste key metrics for each]. Create a plain-English comparison covering returns, risk, liquidity, and management burden. End with the 3 questions the client should ask before choosing. Neutral tone - inform, don't push.

Want the full system?

These 10 prompts are the starting point. The full playbook covers a 90-day LinkedIn content system, AI-assisted deal sourcing, and done-for-you templates built for CRE and finance professionals.

Follow me on LinkedIn - I post practical AI + marketing tactics for CRE and finance pros every week.

Julie Chasen

Marketing Director | AI for CRE & Finance

juliechasen@gmail.com